2. Notes to the Education and Examination Regulations

The Education and Examination Regulations (OER in Dutch) applies to all students of ArtEZ University of the Arts (hereinafter referred to as ArtEZ) who are enrolled in one of the Master's programmes. The Education and Examination Regulations also apply to those who wish to study at ArtEZ. The latter applies primarily to the rules governing admission.

2.1. Structure of programmes

The Education and Examination Regulations consists of two sections: an institute section and a programme section. The institution section sets out the provisions that apply to all Master's students. A programme section is set out for each programme. They contain the study and assessment programme and the final qualifications of the programme you are taking. You will also find which rules and agreements apply only to your programme in the programme section. In the institute section, we refer to the programme section where necessary.

2.2. Education and Examination Regulations terms

The terms used in this document are defined in Section 1.

2.3. Education and Examination Regulations validity period

The Education and Examination Regulations are valid for one academic year. This is true for both the institution section and the programme section. ArtEZ also adopts the study and assessment programme for one academic year. If ArtEZ does not issue new Education and Examination Regulations for an academic year, the Education and Examination Regulations from the previous academic year will apply to that academic year.

2.4. Further elaboration of the rules

For some of the rules of the Education and Examination Regulations, further explanation is necessary. You can find these details on the Exam Board page on the intranet under Policy Rules.

2.5. Changes to the Education and Examination Regulations

In some cases, changes to the Education and Examination Regulations may have to be implemented during the academic year. This may involve changes to the institute section and/or programme section. The procedure for interim changes to the Education and Examination Regulations is elaborated below.

2.6. Changes to the institution section of the Education and Examination Regulations

Changes to the institute section of the Education and Examination Regulations are subject to the same procedure as the regular establishment of the Education and Examination Regulations. A proposed decision by the Executive Board about changes is presented to the Participation Council for its consent. Following consent from the Participation Council, the changes are approved by the Executive Board.

2.7. Changes to the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations

Changes to the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations are subject to the same procedure as the regular establishment of the Education and Examination Regulations. A proposed decision by a head of programme is submitted to the Exam Board and the Programme Committee. The Executive Board decides based on the advice of the Exam Board and the consent of the Programme Committee.

3. Admission to a programme

3.1. Prior education

If you want to enrol in a Master's programme, you need to have a Bachelor's diploma. If you have a foreign qualification that is equivalent to a Bachelor's diploma, the Exam Board advises the Executive Board whether you are eligible for an ArtEZ programme. If the Exam Board has doubts about the valuation of the diploma it can have an International Diploma Valuation (IDW) conducted by Nuffic.

3.2. The normal admission procedure

In addition to these general prior education requirements, selection is made based on potential/talent and expected study success for the programme with a view to a predetermined track. To be admitted to a programme, you must complete an entrance exam. If you pass the entrance exam, you will receive a certificate of admission. You may not begin a programme until you receive proof of admission. The general arrangements for the entrance exam are as follows.

3.3. Entrance exam

The entrance exam is assessed by two or more assessors who are affiliated with the programme as teachers and at least one of whom is a qualified Examiner as established in this Education and Examination Regulations. The procedure and the requirements for the entrance exam are set out in more detail in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations.

3.4. Validity of the entrance exam

The result of the entrance exam only applies to the programme and the location for which you took the entrance exam. The certificate of admission is only valid for the academic year in which you sat the entrance exam. Have you decided not to register after all? you will have to take a new entrance exam in a subsequent academic year. The Exam Board can make an exception to this rule.

- If the ION demonstrates that you are eligible for admission, you can take the regular entrance exam as described in Article 3.2.
- If the ION indicates doubt as to whether you are eligible for admission, you must take an extra entrance exam as described in Article 3.3.

4. Structure of programmes

4.1. Structure of Master's programmes

A Master's programme consists of 60, 120 or 240 credits. Whether the programme consists of 60, 120 or 240 credits is laid down in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations.

4.2. Final qualifications

The objective of the Master's programmes is to impart knowledge, understanding, skills and attitudes appropriate to the professional field for which you are being trained. When you graduate from one of these programmes, ArtEZ wants you to be an independent, critical professional practitioner. What exactly you need to know, be aware of, or be able to do at the end of your programme is included in the Education and Examination Regulations programme section. These are called the final qualifications of the programme.

4.3. The language of instruction of the programme

The programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations shows what the official language of the programme is. This may be Dutch, English, or a combination of Dutch and English. This is the language or languages that are used for communication during lessons, in study materials and tests. During one-to-one teaching moments where no other person is present, such as a discussion between a student and a tutor, it is permissible by mutual agreement to deviate from the language of instruction of the programme and hold the conversation in English and/or Dutch and/or another language. The programme can make an exception for a specific study unit in the following cases:

- a. If a lecture is being given by a guest teacher whose first language is different from the programme language.

4.4. Full-time, part-time or concurrent programmes

The Master's programmes at ArtEZ can be followed full-time, part-time or concurrently. For each programme, the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations describes which variant or variants are available.

4.5. Study and assessment programme

The study and assessment programme provides an overview of the programme. The study and assessment programme of each programme is included in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations. Further information on the content of the programme, tests and criteria for tests can be found in the electronic learning environment of each study unit. The study and assessment programme contains the following information:

- the programme structure (general configuration per academic year and semester);
- per study unit from the study programme:
 - The OSIRIS code.
 - The number of credits (EC).
 - The form of education offered – for example, theory class, practical class, project, etc.
 - Whether the study unit is compulsory or optional.
 - Whether an attendance requirement is in place and the relevant percentage.
 - The manner in which tests are administered. For example, written or oral, practical or theoretical.
 - The appraisal of tests if several tests are held.
 - The point at which you are able to resit if you have failed a test;
 - An overview of competencies covered in each study unit;
 - Any deviating language of instruction of the programme (also see Article 4.3).
- Any arrangements about the order in which you must take particular study units of the study programme.

4.6. Credits for relevant activities outside of the study programme

In exceptional cases, the Exam Board may also award credits for relevant activities not included in the regular study programme. For this, you must write a letter to the Exam Board in advance, in which you ask for permission, substantiate these activities and demonstrate how the programme rates them.

4.7. Exchange scheme

If the programme offers the opportunity to take (part of) the programme at an educational institution abroad, you can use the Exchange scheme. You need permission from the Exam Board for this.

4.8. Request an exemption

If you believe you are eligible for an exemption from an interim exam, you must submit a written request to the Exam Board.

4.9. Programme evaluation

ArtEZ evaluates education. We do so in the following ways:

- a. Students are asked to evaluate their programmes by completing the annual National Student Survey.
- b. Graduates are asked to evaluate their programmes by completing the annual Arts Monitor.

In addition, programmes evaluate the education they provide in one or more of the following ways:

- c. Surveys completed by students.
- d. Surveys completed by graduates (alumni).
- e. Evaluation interviews with students, followed by written reports.
- f. Evaluation interviews with programme committees.
- g. Evaluation interviews with teachers, followed by written reports.
- h. Evaluation interviews with representatives of the professional field, followed by written reports.

The methods of evaluation used for the programme are set out in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations.

5. Testing and assessment

5.1. Test forms

The programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations refers to the study and assessment programme. It explains how you conclude the study units of the educational programme with an interim exam and what form that exam takes.

1. Testing of group assignments

Did you carry out an assignment with a group of students? If so, each student receives an individual assessment. In addition, a group assessment is also possible. How testing will be carried out is set out in detail in the description of the study unit.

2. Nature of oral tests

An oral test is a theory test you take orally. Oral tests are not public in nature. The Exam Board can make an exception to this rule.

5.2. Assessment criteria

The assessment criteria that apply must be detailed for each test. You can view the assessment criteria in the electronic learning environment prior to the start of the study unit.

5.3. Rating scales

The rating of a test leads to a result on a specific rating scale. This information is laid down in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations.

5.4. Testing and resits

1. First opportunity

Every study unit of the study programme for which EC are awarded is concluded with an interim exam comprising one or more tests. The test(s) will be administered in the first exam period following the study unit. This is the first (initial) opportunity.

2. Resit within the academic year

You can resit a test once during the academic year in which the study unit is offered according to the study and assessment programme. The study and assessment programme also indicates when in which period the component can be resat. Resits will take place within six weeks of the first regular test moment. If a programme deviates from this, this is laid down in the Education and Examination Regulations. All resits must be taken within the current academic year.

3. Resits after the academic year

After the year in which you initially participated in a study unit from the programme, you can resit a test every academic year, once per academic year.

4. Equivalency of resits

Does a programme offer a test as a resit? Then every test must be equivalent to the initial test. If this is deviated from, the programme must request permission from the Exam Board.

5.5. Absence during tests

If you are absent during a test, and/or (if applicable to the relevant programme) you have not registered for the test, this will be considered as not having been passed and will be indicated in Osiris. This means that this opportunity will lapse, as described above in Article 5.4, paragraph 1, and you must participate in the resit as described in Article 5.4, paragraphs 2 and 3. Only if you were unable to attend the test due to force majeure, you can request an extra opportunity from the Exam Board.

5.6. Attendance requirement

Cooperation is important in ArtEZ programmes. By this we mean cooperation between teachers, educational support staff and students, as well as cooperation between students when performing practical exercises. For this reason, in many study units students are dependent on each other's input and presence for their individual learning process. The means that students are required to actively participate in these study units. In principle, an attendance requirement of 80% applies to all study units. Programmes are allowed to deviate from this and adopt an attendance requirement between 60% and 80. This is stated in the programme section of the Education and Examination Regulations. The programme is responsible for keeping track of attendance. If the programme fails to do this, there will be no consequences for the student if their attendance is below the requirement.

1. Consequences of not meeting the set attendance requirement

If you have attended a study unit of the study programme for less than the attendance requirement determined by the programme, you will not be allowed to take the tests in the study unit. You can repeat and complete the study unit the following academic year.

2. Exemption from attendance requirement

If you have good reasons why you are not able to fulfil the attendance requirement for a study unit, you can submit a request for exemption from the attendance requirement to the Exam Board no later than the first week of the study unit. The petition should accurately describe the classes and or practicals for which exemption from the attendance requirement is requested. This should accurately specify Osiris code(s), dates and class times. A petition is accompanied by a written recommendation from the head of programme. The student must contact the study career coach for this written recommendation.

5.7. The test result, inspection of tests and complaints

1. Interim exam assessment

The Examiner determines the result of the interim exam based on the result of the test(s). You will receive the result of an oral test within two working weeks after the test. You will receive the result of the other tests within four working weeks. The date on which you pass the test counts as the date on which you obtain credits.

2. Right of inspection

A written test may be inspected up to six working weeks after the result is announced. Is there already a resit date? Then you must be able to inspect the test before this. After inspecting the test, you must have a further two working weeks to study for the resit. A programme can deviate from these time frames when there are exceptional circumstances, but the Exam Board must agree to this.

3. Submitting a complaint

If you have a complaint about one of the following matters, you can submit a complaint to the Exam Board.

- How the test proceeded;
- How the test corresponded with the content of the study unit;
- Lack of clarity regarding assessment criteria;
- The result of the test.

If you want to submit a complaint about an assessment, you can do this within six weeks of receiving the test result.

5.8. Awarding credits

1. Awarding credits in the case of an individual test

If a study unit includes one test and you have received a satisfactory mark for this test, you will be awarded the corresponding credits for that study unit and you will have completed that study unit.

2. Awarding credits in the case of two or more tests

If a study unit includes two or more tests, the overall result of the study unit must be sufficient in order to pass the study unit. Only then will you be awarded the corresponding credits for that study unit and will you have completed that study unit.

3. Awarding credits in the case of an exemption

If you have been granted an exemption from a test, you have passed the test and you will be awarded the corresponding credits.

5.9. Fraud

1. Admission

An applicant who requests admission to an ArtEZ programme must act in good faith and disclose all available facts that are relevant to the decision of the Executive Board to admit that person as a student. An applicant may not mislead the Executive Board or cause others to mislead the Executive Board with regard to any element of their application for admission.

2. Testing

If an Examiner or invigilator notices that you are committing or have committed fraud during a test, the Examiner or invigilator will report this to the relevant student(s) and the student will be permitted to complete the test in the agreed time. The Examiner or invigilator will immediately report this to the head of programme and to the Exam Board by email. The Exam Board will carry out an investigation and feed back the further action to the student involved and the head of programme within 10 working days.

If the Exam Board decides that fraud has been committed, your test will not be rated. In addition, the Exam Board can impose the following measures:

- You are not allowed to participate in the next resit.
- You are not allowed to sit one or more tests for a period of up to one year.

In the event of serious fraud, the Executive Board may decide to permanently terminate your enrolment on the programme at the instigation of the Exam Board

6. Study career

6.1. Academic counselling

Every student is entitled to academic counselling.

1. Study career coach

Each student is allocated an academic career advisor. This individual guides you in your programme, your study choices and your schedule. The objective of this counselling is effective study progress and development of competencies.

2. Student counsellor

There is an ArtEZ student counsellor in every study location. You can go to them with personal problems that affect your studies or study progress. The intranet lists what you can contact the student counsellor for and how to make an appointment.

6.2. Study progress administration

Osiris contains the following details for every student:

- The study units of the study programme you have followed;
- The assessment of each study unit of the study programme;
- The number of credits you have obtained.

Do you think there are errors in your registration? report this to the Educational Support department as soon as possible. After a year, the details are finalised and changes are no longer possible.

6.3. Studying with a study impediment

1. Obligation to report a study impediment

If you have a study impediment, it is your responsibility to report it to the student counsellor as soon as possible. If you choose not to report it, you cannot invoke it at a later date with retroactive effect. As soon as possible means:

- when you enrol;
- before the start of your programme;
- or, if you develop the study impediment during your programme, as soon as possible after it arises or has been diagnosed.

2. Educational environment
